Venice, Dorsoduro e Giudecca

The travel Dorsoduro e Giudecca is very simple and pleasant, it leads to the south of Venice, with open spaces and lots of water.

Recommended even for a brief visit.

The start is the Railway station Santa Lucia or the Car station Piazzale Roma. Judge which one horrify you mostly.

At Piazzale Roma go to the corner where the little train from Tronchetto arrives. And take the street Calle Nuova dei Tabacchi.

When in Giudecca, you can promenade freely, it is very small, beautiful, more calm and different than the "main land".

Here some interesting places:

- Calle dei Lavranesi
- Ponte dei Lavranesi
- Visit the small Island, with modern block, where real Venetians live today
- Calle del Fisola
- Fondamenta Beata Giuliana di Collalto
- Fondamenta San Gerardo
- Ponte dei Lavranesi
- Fondamenta delle Convertite
- Campo san Cosimo e Damiano
- Calle del Pistor
- Fondamenta di Santa Eufemia
- Calle Longa dell'Accademia dei Nobili

An old Gondola with the Fisola or Cover

A bit of story of the Gondola with the Fisola or Cover.

Danish writer Hans Christian Andersen didn't like Venice. He preferred Napoli. At his time, in 1830, the bridge to Venice was not built. From the main land, Marghera, tourists had to sail with Gondola to Venice. He didn't like the Gondola, especially he didn't like the Fisola or cover. He compared it, as to sail inside a coffin.

Ponte to Campo Junghans

Visit:

- Fondamenta Sant'Angelo
- Calle delle Erbe
- Fondamenta San Giacomo
- Campo nani o Barbarigo

View to Sam Marco from the main promenade of Fondamenta di Santa Eufemia

Take the Vaporetto back to Venice's main land.
